

We have an odd socks policy in our house. It's something to do with "crying in a bucket"; at least that's what Felicity says

So, when I fancy a Paul Smith day, it's fitting that the blue, with little yellow bits, and the green, with little mauve bits, go so well together. I ignore the odd looks as I stride around Waitrose. Those folks clearly don't understand "crying in a bucket" households

Here's to a brilliantly successful 2002 for all the Pawsons